Describe the rationale for the proposed program change(s):

(Explain your reasons for creating, revising, or deleting the curriculum or program.)

Put simply, the current title does not "do justice" for the broad nature of what the concentration actually offers. In its original conception (through the great work by Dave Ermann, the Director of the concentration at that time), the Concentration focused heavily on the social welfare, social services, and social work aspects of health and health care. Furthermore, it maintained a strong "organizations" perspective, meaning that the material offered looked at issues of health and health care primarily within the realm of social structures. Therefore, during that time the title of "Concentration in Health Services" fit very well.

Since my arrival however, and in taking over the Directorship of the Concentration, I have added new courses within the Concentration (SOCI313, SOCI346) and revamped, and renamed, the keystone course SOCI311 (now Sociology of Health & Healthcare). In doing so, I purposely altered the perspective and focus of the Concentration and what students "get out" of their progression through it. There is no longer such a strong emphasis on social services or medical social work (although these are still certainly covered within the courses), and although we do utilize an organizations-based perspective in particular courses at specific times (especially when discussing issues related to health policy, the rise of nursing, and the culture of medicine), there is also a vibrant effort towards exposing the students to more of a micro-level, interactions-based approach such as that employed when exploring doctor-patient relations, the physiological tenets of physical and mental well-being, patient narratives, caregiver burden, and the experiences of aging. Although I have made significant changes to the concentration I have kept one of its fundamental elements, the practicum SOCI410. Dave Ermann did an amazing job organizing this particular course/internship experience for the students and I believe this is an area where the emphasis on exposing students to medical social work really works well.

Given all the changes I have made to the concentration, and yet keeping SOCI410, I believe it is necessary to change the title of the concentration to Concentration in Health & Health Services. Although this may seem like a very minor change (just adding one word), I feel it more accurately reflects the broad and encompassing nature of what the revamped concentration can offer students. Furthermore, I feel that the old title may have turned students away as they may have thought it was only for those interested in medical social work and/or health administration. I believe the new title reveals that the concentration (and the courses therein) includes not just aspects of various professions within health and healthcare, but also various issues discussed within the realm of medical sociology.

This proposed change does have the unanimous and enthusiastic support of my department's Undergraduate Policy Committee.
