List new courses required for the new or revised curriculum. How do they support the overall program objectives of the major/minor/concentrations)?

(Be aware that approval of the curriculum is dependent upon these courses successfully passing through the Course Challenge list. If there are no new courses enter "None")

None

Explain, when appropriate, how this new/revised curriculum supports the 10 goals of undergraduate education: <http://www.ugs.udel.edu/gened/>

The Minor in Fashion History and Culture supports the 10 goals of undergraduate education in several ways. In particular, this combination of courses will examine clothing and appearance from both historical and contemporary perspectives and through analysis of cultural differences. Goal 5- an understanding of the diverse ways of thinking that underlie the search for knowledge in the arts, humanities, and social sciences; Goal 8- expand understanding and appreciation of human creativity and diverse forms of aesthetic and intellectual expression; and Goal 10- develop an international perspective in order to live and work effectively in an increasingly global society.

The courses required for the proposed minor draw on the interdisciplinary nature of the fashion and apparel studies field using social, historical, aesthetic and cultural contexts (Goals 5 & 8) to develop an understanding of the influence of clothing and appearance on the global society (Goal 10). Three of the courses in the proposed minor are approved Arts & Sciences Group B electives (FASH 214, FASH 224, and FASH 319). Further, FASH 319 and FASH 213 are approved multicultural courses. These courses develop students' understanding the factors underlying the dress of peoples around the world as well as the global influences on contemporary dress. Courses in the minor will provide students opportunities for learning through a variety of oral, written and visual outcomes: exams, journaling, written and oral research reports, team and individual research projects, and hands-on experiences with objects in the Historic Costume and Textiles Collection.

Identify other units affected by the proposed changes:

(Attach permission from the affected units. If no other unit is affected, enter "None")

ANTH 334 Anthropological Perspectives on Clothing is a new course that will be offered by the anthropology department and is being proposed as an option in the Fashion History and Culture minor. Permission for the Anthropology department is attached.

Describe the rationale for the proposed program change(s):

(Explain your reasons for creating, revising, or deleting the curriculum or program.)

- The criteria admitting students into the minor is unnecessarily restrictive. FASH 114 is now a pre-requisite for all courses in the minor and the statement indicating when FASH 114 is taken is deleted.
- Statements are added to clarify admission criteria, how applications are submitted and where credits are taken.
- Statement that admission will be based on a cumulative GPA of 2.0 to align with minors in Arts and Sciences.
- Addition of minimum grade of C- for all required FASH courses and supporting courses ensures quality graduates.

Show the new or revised curriculum as it should appear in the Course Catalog.

Minor in Fashion History and Culture

The Minor in Fashion History and Culture provides a unique opportunity for students to develop an understanding of the origins and evolution of dress and fashion in relation to global societies and cultures. Clothing and appearance (i.e. dress) are forms of non-verbal communication. Varying social, national, ethnic and gender groups project their identities through their dress. When examined from both historical and contemporary perspectives, as well as through analysis of cultural differences, clothing and appearance contribute to our understanding of the world. As an interdisciplinary subject, the development and importance of dress and fashion from pre-historic times until present day incorporates historical, economic, aesthetic, technological, social and cultural factors that influenced clothing change. The Minor in Fashion History and Culture requires a total of 18 credits of course work.

The minor is open to students majoring in any academic discipline and across all colleges. The minor is awarded only to students who have applied and been admitted to the program. Applications to be admitted into the minor are submitted on-line through UDSIS. Admission will be based on a cumulative GPA of 2.0 and the completion of at least 28 credits at the University of Delaware prior to application.

The credits required for the minor may also be used to meet other distribution requirements, such as degree major requirements and electives. Students seeking a minor in Fashion History and Culture may not take any of the required fashion courses at another Institution.

The Minor in Fashion History and Culture requires a total of 18 credits of course work. A minimum grade of C- is required for all courses included in the minor.

Yes, ANthropology 334 will be the Anthropology clothing course. This sounds great. We are delighted that you will add it to the minor and I am sure that Jill looks forward to the perspectives your students will bring to her class. Thanks.
